Food and Culture

European food is really good! For non vegetarians it's a delight but vegetarians need not be disheartened – each part of the country has plenty to offer e.g., Turkish falafel roll (available throughout the Europe in plenty), Belgian fries, waffles, rice with various curries and more.

People are very friendly and helping in general (though pickpockets exist everywhere)

They don't have inhibitions – people don't mind drinking/ kissing in public

They are very particular about time. A train scheduled to leave at 11:23 am will leave at 11:23 am – don't pray for it to be late because that won't help

Europeans are fitness freaks – you'll see very few unhealthy souls

TIPS/HACKS FOR YOUR TRIP TO EUROPE

Taxis are damn expensive – prefer public transport. It is cheaper and very efficient for last mile connectivity

Take an international roaming activated SIM from India or buy a local SIM card from country of visit (costs around 15 euros for 1 GB data and 100 minutes calling back to India)

Take some Euros in cash and some loaded in travel card (can be issued from your bank)

Vegetarian food is not difficult to find – you should explore local cuisine. European food is tasty!

Booking everything 2 months+ in advance will save you money

You can pick food from supermarkets when in Europe – there are lots of YUM food items available there for very cheap. You can munch on it while sightseeing during the day. You'll save on time that you would otherwise spend waiting for food in restaurants
